 BY KELLY MALAMBRI
OPEN MEDIA MIAMI

The streets of Midtown will soon be filled with people walking through the neighborhood sporting bejeweled, pink bras – and they won't be doing it for fashion's sake.

The American Cancer Society is hosting a 5K walk at the Shops at Midtown Miami on Oct. 9 to raise funds for breast cancer research and to provide services to those affected by the disease.

The walk will begin at 3210 N. Miami Ave., go through East Coast Avenue, and then loop back around.

You can register online or in person at 8 a.m. The walk will begin at 9 a.m.

Participants are encouraged to put on a pink bra to honor those who have struggled with breast cancer and decorate their pink bras with whatever they feel helps express their experiences.

Among the walkers will be breast-cancer survivor Bibiana Salmon, who ended her cancer treatment last year, after four months of chemotherapy and six weeks of heat-wave inducing radiation.

Salmon's mother was also diagnosed with breast cancer, as well as her husband, father, and grandfather who were lost to cancer.

With her pink bra already decked-out, Salmon said she's excited for the 5K, which she will walk with her daughters Camille and Tabitha.

"There is hope," Salmon said. "The cure is out there; it's a matter of time, and it's our responsibility to make sure we advance [the search for] it."
